PRIVATE FUNDINGHealth Policy Research*Robert Wood Johnson Foundation
Scholars in Health Policy Research

Robert Wood Johnson Foundation

Program: This program helps to develop a new generation of creative health policy thinkers and researchers within the disciplines of economics, political science and sociology. Each year the program selects highly qualified individuals for two-year fellowships at one of three nationally prominent universities with the expectation that they will make important research contributions to future health policy in the United States.

Award: Scholars will be awarded stipends from their university of $89,000 each year.

Eligibility: Recent graduates of doctoral programs in economics, political science and sociology, including junior faculty are invited to apply. Preference is given to applicants who have not previously worked extensively in health or health policy research. Applicants must have received a doctoral degree after January 1, 2005, but no later than July 2010. All applicants must be citizens of the United States or its territories or have permanent residency status at the time of application. Applications from candidates who come from groups that historically have been underrepresented in the three disciplines are encouraged to apply.

Deadline: October 21, 2009

Application Guidelines/Submission: Visit the website for complete application guidelines/submission.
